Psi Epsilon Omega Chapter of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Incorporated® Supports Laurel Families With Thanksgiving Food Donations From Community Garden

Seeds that were planted this summer helped families in need during this holiday season. Psi Epsilon Omega (PEO) Chapter of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Incorporated (AKA) donated fresh produce items to Elizabeth House, a nonprofit all-volunteer food pantry and soup kitchen in Laurel.

The donations were provided to 210 homeless and low-resource families of the greater Laurel area on Nov. 19. This date coincided with Elizabeth House's annual Thanksgiving giveaway to residents. The food largely consisted of produce grown via PEO's 1908 Harvest Project, an initiative that continues to address food insecurity in Prince George's County.

"The purpose of the 1908 Harvest Project, under PEO's Environmental Justice Subcommittee, is to grow and harvest healthy and nutritious vegetables to fight against food insecurity in Prince George's County," said Benita A. Swindell, PEO president. "We have been watering and weeding all summer and are wrapping up our gardening season by providing fresh vegetables to residents of one of the Maryland communities we serve. Service is the heart of Alpha Kappa Alpha."

variety of fresh produce they can continue to donate. The chapter has reserved additional space in a Bowie community garden, which has already yielded tomatoes, cabbage, broccoli, carrots, and much more.

"In addition to our community garden, PEO has also incorporated a home gardening component for our chapter members to increase their knowledge of the associated health benefits of eating fresh produce and to learn simple techniques for growing fresh fruits and vegetables at home," added Swindell.

Planting began in May of 2022, and 190 pounds of produce has been donated to Elizabeth House since August.

Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority Incorporated®, Psi Epsilon Omega Chapter was chartered in 2007. Since its founding, the chapter has implemented its service programs in Laurel, Bowie, and Greenbelt, Maryland.

Governor Hogan Proclaims November 25 as American Indian Heritage Day in Maryland

Annual holiday recognizes the contributions and achievements of Maryland's Tribes and Indigenous Peoples

By PRESS OFFICER
Governor's Office of Community Initiatives

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (Nov. 25, 2022)—Governor Larry Hogan proclaimed November 25 as American Indian Heritage Day in Maryland. The annual holiday, observed in the state since 2008, recognizes both the historical and contemporary contributions and achievements of Maryland's tribes and indigenous peoples.

"American Indian Heritage Day is a time to honor and reflect upon the rich American Indian culture that is a deeply rooted part of Maryland's history, present, and future," said Governor Hogan. "Today we honor Maryland's diverse American Indian communities, and thank them for their many contributions to our great state."

The United States House of Representatives introduced legislation to establish American Indian Heritage Day in the United States in 2007, designating the Friday after Thanksgiving as a day to pay tribute to Native Americans across the country. The bill became law in October 2008. Prior to the national institution of the holiday, the Maryland General Assembly established American Indian Heritage Day in Maryland during the 2008 legislative session.

Earlier this month, Governor Hogan proclaimed November as American Indian Heritage Month in Maryland.

To observe the holiday this year, the Governor's Office of Community Initiatives and the Maryland Commission on Indian Affairs will attend an event at Port Discovery Children's Museum in Baltimore. Maryland Commission on Indian Affairs Administrative Director E. Keith Colston will present Governor Hogan's proclamation, with Chair Sherry Ayers and invited guests in attendance.

In addition to coordinating programs to advance the cultural, educational, economic, and social development of Maryland's diverse American Indian communities, the Maryland Commission on Indian Affairs oversees the process of designating Maryland American Indian status. Maryland's state-recognized tribes include the Accohannock Tribe, the Piscataway Indian Nation, and the Piscataway Conoy Tribe. Maryland's American Indian communities also include the Nause-Waiwash Band of Indians, the Pocomoke Indian Nation, the Assateague Indians, and the Youghiogheny Shawnee.

"Throughout the tenure of the Hogan administration, we have forged invaluable relationships within Maryland's American Indian communities," said Governor's Office of Community Initiatives Executive Director Steven J. McAdams. "Partnership and collaboration are key to engaging communities as we look to the future and honor the Marylanders we serve."

Prince George's Community College Recognized as a 2022 ALL IN Most Engaged Campuses for College Student Voting

PGCC is one of 394 college campuses recognized for its efforts to increase nonpartisan democratic engagement in the 2022 election.

By COURTNEY DAVIS
Prince George's Community College

LARGO, Md. (Nov. 22, 2022)—Prince George's Community College (PGCC) announced today that ALL IN Campus Democracy Challenge (ALL IN) has recognized it as a 2022 ALL IN Most Engaged Campuses for College Student Voting. The ALL IN Most Engaged Campuses for College Student Voting recognizes colleges and universities for making intentional efforts to increase student voter participation. PGCC joins a group of 394 colleges and universities recognized by ALL IN for completing these four actions:

- Participate in the ALL IN Campus Democracy Challenge
- Shared 2020 NSLVE Reports with campus voting data with ALL IN
- Developed and submitted a 2022 democratic engagement action plan with ALL IN
- Have a current signatory to ALL IN's Higher Education Presidents' Commitment to Full Student Voter Participation.

"As the designated voting coordinator for the College, I worked with various organizations and student clubs to host several voter education and registration events to promote student voting and the importance of the primary and mid-term elections," said Paulett McIntosh, program director for Student Engagement and Leadership at PGCC. "Some of our engagement events included a commitment to voting pledge drive, transportation to and from polls during early voting, and a 'Know Before You Vote' campaign to promote the use of the 411 voter's guide. These activities helped to increase student engagement across our community and will help us meet our goal to increase student voting by 56% in the 2024 elections."

"College student voter turnout has increased since 2016, and this increase has been driven by students. The ALL IN Campus Democracy Challenge is excited to expand our ALL IN Student Voting Honor Roll to recognize these student voting champions across the country," said Jennifer Domagal-Goldman, executive director of the ALL IN Campus Democracy Challenge. "These students registered voters, served on their campus voting coalitions, spearheaded voter education efforts, advocated for campus polling locations and organized other voter engagement efforts to ensure their peers were confident and informed voters. We are excited to see what they continue to accomplish ahead of the 2022 midterms."

The ALL IN Campus Democracy Challenge empowers colleges and universities to achieve excellence in nonpartisan student democratic engagement. Campuses that join the ALL IN Campus Democracy Challenge complete a set of action items, with the support of ALL IN Challenge staff, to institutionalize nonpartisan civic learning, political engagement, and voter participation on their campus. The ALL IN Campus Democracy Challenge currently engages over 9 million students from more than 950 institutions in all 50 states and the District of Columbia. Campuses can join the ALL IN Challenge at <https://allinchallenge.org/join/>

The ALL IN Campus Democracy Challenge

(ALL IN) is a national nonpartisan initiative of Civic Nation, a 501(c)(3) organization. The ALL IN Campus Democracy Challenge strives to change civic culture and institutionalize democratic engagement activities and programs on college campuses, making voter participation a defining feature of campus life. ALL IN, in collaboration with over 960 higher education institutions, seeks to make participation in local, state, and federal elections a social norm; substantially increase the number of college students who are democratically engaged on an ongoing basis, during and between elections, and not just at the polls; and make educating for democratic engagement on college campuses an accepted and expected part of the culture and curriculum so that students graduate with the knowledge, skills, behaviors, and values needed to be an informed and active citizen.

FREEDMEN'S BUREAU IN PRINCE GEORGE'S COUNTY

The fourth school to be established by the Freedmen's Bureau in Prince George's County was constructed in the Aquasco Election District 1. The school was located in the town of Woodville and was established around the same time as the John Wesley Methodist Episcopal Church. James Gray, Richard Douglas, Henry Chapman, James Douglas, and Walter Thomas were trustees of the Methodist Episcopal congregation at Woodville and were also instrumental in the establishment of the Woodville School.

James Gray was the former slave of Elizabeth L. Garner of Aquasco. On February 22, 1866, Gray purchased two acres of land from George Morton, a local planter, for $66. Prior to emancipation, Morton owned one of the largest slave holdings in the county: sixty men, women, and children. Many of these slaves were members of the Douglas and Gray families.

Four months later, on April 21, 1866, Gray and his wife Matilda, sold the land to the trustees of what would become John Wesley Methodist Church and the Woodville Colored School. The deed provided that the land was to be held in trust that they (the trustees) shall erect and build or cause to be erected and build thereon a house or place of worship for members of the M.E. church.

Douglas immediately began corresponding with the Baltimore Association and the Freedmen's Bureau requesting construction of a school at Woodville. Douglas was the former slave of Peter Wood, Sr. and was a literate freedman. It is primarily his letters that were received by the Bureau on school construction at Woodville. In early 1867, the Baltimore Association began shipping lumber to Woodville. Unlike the reaction in other communities within Prince George's County, the Woodville construction project met with little resistance from planters.

On September 28, 1868, Douglas wrote Rev. Kimball at Bureau headquarters confirming the community's readiness for a teacher at Woodville. On the 11th of the same month, Rev. Kimball wrote Col. Corson in Philadelphia and asked for a "colored man to teach a colored school at Woodville".

When the teaching position was still not filled by late March of the following year, Douglas again wrote Kimball. His letter was dated March 24, 1869. In it, he expressed their concerns of all involved, indicating that the trustees had taken to meeting every incoming stage in expectation of a teacher's arrival. Addressing the extent to which the community was vested in this effort, he stated: "Many parents have gone beyond their means in fixing up their children, giving them such clothing as will cause them to make a decent appearance at school. The most on earth, the only needed thing, is a good teacher." The community was getting some good use from its newly constructed school building. Douglas informed Re. Kimball that the congregation of John Wesley Methodist Church was holding worship services there.

Rev. Kimball, in response, recruited and confirmed the appointment of Mary A.C. Coakly, a Black woman, to teach at Woodville. Although confirmation was relayed to Major Stuart Eldridge on April 15, 1869, Douglas was not informed of the Coakly appointment. He wrote to Kimball a second time on April 21st. His letter contained a more than a hint of the frustration his community was feeling over this dilemma. In part, his letter said: "I should like very much to hear something of your arrangements about the teacher. I can hardly tell what to think sometimes. I think you have forgotten us."

Before Douglas could receive a reply, Mary Coakly arrived at Woodville. On April 29th, she wrote to Rev. Kimball of her progress from Woodville. Coakly had arrived the previous Thursday and began school the following Monday morning. Twenty-one students had attended school on the first day of classes. Her most immediate need was books; she requested forty-five first and second grade readers, twenty-five primers, twelve arithmetic's for beginners and thirty writing slates.

Upon receipts of her letter, Kimball responded with uncharacteristic haste, forwarding her order the very next day to Ballantine Books in Washington, D.C. In reporting his actions to Miss Coakly, he chided: "I hope you will use a little more care about your writing. You spelled some words wrong."

Coakly's tenure as teacher at Woodville was to end after little more than two months on July 1. During the short time she taught, pupil count had risen from 21 to 53. She had also established a Sabbath school and a temperance society called "The Vanguard of Freedom-Howard Division." It was during her tenure that the school became officially known as "John Wesley". Information received from Historical document from Prince George's County Public School.

COVIDReady: State of Maryland Surpasses 1 Million Bivalent Booster Milestone

Governor Hogan, State Health Officials Honor Contributions of 100 GoVAX Ambassadors

By MICHAEL RICCI
Executive Office of the Governor

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (Nov. 21, 2022)—Governor Larry Hogan and the Maryland Department of Health (MDH) today announced that more than one million Marylanders have received their COVID-19 bivalent booster since September in order to be COVIDReady in time for the holidays.

“Through our COVIDReady plan, Maryland continues to be one of the most vaccinated and boosted states in the country,” said Governor Hogan. “We are grateful for the everyday vigilance of Marylanders, and the leadership of our GoVAX ambassadors, who have reminded us that we truly are all in this together.”

Recognition for GoVax Ambassadors. The state is recognizing the efforts of the state’s GoVAX ambassadors from all walks of life with governors’ citations and a new ad, which will play on WBAL during Thanksgiving programming. First launched in January 2021, the initial GoVAX campaign highlighted around a dozen Marylanders—including former UMBC President Dr. Freeman Hrabowski, Del. Joseline Peña-Melnyk, and Associate Professor of Medicine at the Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine Dr. Kathleen Page.

Enthusiasm quickly grew for the campaign, attracting many more ambassadors, including community leaders, health care workers, faith leaders, and Maryland families. Each of these Marylanders have been essential in sharing information about the safety and effectiveness of COVID-19 vaccines and boosters, helping Maryland earn national recognition for its COVID-19 response.

“Surpassing one million COVID-19 bivalent booster shots administered since September shows that Marylanders understand the importance of staying COVIDReady,” said MDH Secretary Dennis R. Schrader. “Fighting COVID-19 has always been a statewide effort, and Marylanders have pulled together to protect ourselves and our families against this virus by getting boosted. We are grateful for our GoVAX ambassadors who have played a role in this effort.”

COVIDReady Maryland. Marylanders can protect themselves from flu and COVID-19 by getting a “Flooster,” a flu shot and COVID-19 booster. It’s safe to get both at the same visit and is the best way to protect against severe illness and death. As always, Marylanders are encouraged to practice basic health hygiene by washing your hands, covering your cough, and staying home from work and school when sick. This helps slow the spread of respiratory illness like RSV as well, which can be dangerous to small children and older adults and doesn’t have a vaccine.

Governor Hogan Welcomes ‘Hogan’ the VetDog to State House in Annapolis

Newest Service Dog-In-Training Named as Tribute to Governor’s Commitment to Helping Wounded Veterans Governor Launched Major Expansion of Program to Reduce Backlog of Veterans Waiting For VetDogs

By MICHAEL RICCI
Executive Office of the Governor

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (Nov. 18, 2022)—Governor Larry Hogan recently welcomed the newest member of the state of Maryland’s partnership with America’s VetDogs to the State House in Annapolis. Named as a surprise tribute to the state’s commitment to helping wounded veterans, ‘Hogan’ is currently being trained by incarcerated individuals at the Maryland Correctional Institution-Hagerstown as part of an innovative partnership between America’s VetDogs and the Maryland Department of Public Safety and Correctional Services (DPSCS). The newest VetDog-in-training will learn more than 100 commands in order to one day work as a service dog for a disabled veteran.

“This is an incredible program, and I have been so inspired by the stories of trainers and veterans who have formed a strong bond with these service dogs,” said Governor Hogan. “I am humbled by this honor, but more importantly, we are proud that Maryland has become the top state in the program.”

Governor Hogan visited the DPSCS VetDogs program at Western Correctional Institution in Cumberland last year, where he met with some of the trainers and puppies. After hearing the inspiring testimony of Al Moore—a Marine who says his VetDog saved his life—the governor directed DPSCS to immediately expand the initiative in order to reduce the backlog of veterans waiting for VetDogs.

“Maryland is one of our greatest programs, and for the first time ever, we are naming a dog after a sitting governor,” said America’s VetDogs President and CEO John Miller.

“This is in honor of the governor’s contributions to the legacy of the program.”

Since the governor’s visit, the state’s correctional facilities have trained a total of 21 dogs. Thirty-two dogs are currently in training, making the State of Maryland the top-producing VetDog prison system in the nation. DPSCS has increased the number of correctional facilities training VetDogs from three to five, and a sixth facility is currently in the pipeline.

In addition to ‘Hogan’ the VetDog, the governor was also joined at the State House by DPSCS Secretary Robert Green, America’s VetDogs CEO John Miller, and Officer Mark Clevenger, who oversees the VetDogs program at the Maryland Correctional Institution-Hagerstown.

NATIONAL HARBOR, Md. (Nov. 23, 2022)—BetMGM, a leading sports betting and iGaming operator, launched its mobile app in Maryland today giving customers access to a variety of online betting options and benefits tied to MGM Resorts’ premier destinations nationwide, including MGM National Harbor.

“This is a significant milestone that elevates our vision to deliver world-class entertainment to sports fans in the DC-Maryland-Virginia (DMV) region,” said BetMGM CEO Adam Greenblatt. “The convenience of our best in-class mobile app connects directly to the engaging atmosphere we’ve created in our retail sportsbooks at MGM National Harbor and Nationals Park.”

The BetMGM app offers a user-friendly sports betting platform experience, giving Maryland sports fans the ability to customize pre-game, live in-play, futures and parlay wagers. Additionally, integration with MGM Rewards allows Maryland’s BetMGM users to redeem their gameplay for world-class experiences at MGM Resorts properties nationwide including MGM Grand, Bellagio and ARIA in Las Vegas, Borgata in New Jersey, and Beau Rivage in Mississippi.

The mobile app complements the BetMGM Sportsbook & Lounge at MGM National Harbor that opened in December 2021. The BetMGM Sportsbook features a 360-degree jumbotron and 110-foot state-of-the-art wrap-around screen. MGM National Harbor has more than 40 sports betting kiosks located throughout the casino, a second BetMGM Sportsbook on the casino’s second level and a BetMGM betting counter and four kiosks at TAP Sports Bar.

Melanie Johnson, MGM National Harbor’s President & COO, said, “Today’s announcement is monumental as it allows us to expand our sports betting offerings and connect with guests beyond our resort’s walls. The BetMGM Sportsbook & Lounge is an incredible amenity, and the addition of the mobile app further enhances our customer experience.”

BetMGM strengthened its commitment to the DMV in January 2022 when it opened the first retail sportsbook connected to a Major League Baseball stadium at Nationals Park in Washington, D.C. That followed the launch of the BetMGM mobile app in Virginia in January 2021.

As BetMGM continues to expand to new markets, responsible gambling education remains a key focus. BetMGM is proud to provide resources to help customers play responsibly including GameSense, an industry leading program, developed and licensed to MGM Resorts by the British Columbia Lottery Corporation. Through the integration within BetMGM’s mobile and desktop platforms, customers can receive the same GameSense experience they have grown to count on at MGM Resorts properties nationwide. This complements BetMGM’s already existing responsible gambling tools which serve to provide customers with an entertaining and safe digital experience.

The BetMGM app is available for download in Maryland on iOS, with Android soon to follow, as well as on desktop at www.betmgm.com.

Conversations About Cancer Screening Should Be Priority This Holiday Season—It Can Save Your Life

By DAVID FORD

Two-time cancer survivor, Senior Government Relations Manager at Southern California Edison, and member of the American Cancer Society Cancer Action Network Board of Directors

The holidays are a time to gather with friends and family for food, fun, and great conversations. But imagine those conversations not going as planned and the joy of being with your loved ones overshadowed by someone sharing that they have cancer. You may not have been ready to have that discussion, yet it was happening. And you may not be prepared to talk about screenings with your loved ones, but it's necessary. As someone who has had two different cancers in my life, I cannot stress enough the importance of getting screened.

It was 2015 when I first heard those earth-shattering words, "it's cancer." I thought back to a conversation with my doctor just a few months earlier when they recommended a routine colonoscopy screening. Instead of getting it done right away, I kept putting it off. My life was busy. I had a family and was in the midst of a successful career. It just wasn't a priority for me, and all the while, I was unknowingly putting myself at risk. Then flash-forward to a critical moment with my doctor. It was too late; surgery was needed to treat my cancer.

If I'd gotten my colonoscopy, a screening for colon cancer, when it was recommended, it's possible that I could've avoided surgery, treatment, and the emotional toll I put on my family. Even though the treatments saved me, I had to learn the hard way not to take unnecessary risks with my life. So, three years later, when my doctor recommended screening for prostate cancer, I did not wait. I completed the screening immediately, and we were able to find and treat my second cancer at an early stage. Now, I am once again cancer free and sharing my story to help others understand why they should be getting screened.

According to the American Cancer Society, 1 in 2 men and 1 in 3 women will face a cancer diagnosis in their lifetime, yet the discussion of cancer screening remains taboo in our community. Now is the time to start having conversations about cancer screening and having it often. Be an example for your friends and family. It's okay to say, "Hey, as your buddy, I want us to be together 20 years from now. Make sure you're taking care of yourself.

That includes going to the doctor and getting screened for cancer." It may be a tough conversation to have, but you may be the one that could make a lifesaving difference.

Cancer wasn't something I was prepared to factor into my life. But through my experience, I learned some tough lessons. It is important to listen to my doctor. I need to take the time to share with others, so they don't make the same mistake. It's necessary to go to the doctor on a timely basis. It's okay to have scary conversations about health with loved ones. And if a doctor recommends cancer screening, get screened.

Through my work with the American Cancer Society, I have seen that cancer doesn't discriminate. It's not just older people getting cancer, anyone can be at risk. This is the reason why it is so important for you to talk to a doctor about the type of health care and screening you may need. You can't play around with your life. It's more than just a cancer screening, it's a way to help ensure that we will be around for our families. The longer we are around, the more opportunities we have to live our dreams and to see our loved ones achieve their goals.

As we prepare to gather for the holidays, whether it's a large gathering or with immediate family, I encourage you to have a conversation with your loved ones about regular cancer screening. I hope that you take the steps yourself to schedule an appointment to get screened. A small discussion can make a lifesaving difference, so please don't wait.

Marc Morial

President and CEO, National Urban League

To Be Equal:

Nancy Pelosi Is the Most Successful and Effective Speaker of the House in U.S. History

"History will note she is the most consequential Speaker of the House of Representatives in our history. There are countless examples of how she embodies the obligation of elected officials to uphold their oath to God and country to ensure our democracy delivers and remains a beacon to the world. In everything she does, she reflects a dignity in her actions and a dignity she sees in the lives of the people of this nation." —President Biden

When the National Urban League convened our first in-person conference in three years, in July, Speaker of the House Nancy Pelosi joined us for the opening rally at the Martin Luther King, Jr., Memorial.

"There's an assault on our democracy," she said. "That's why we have to fight for voting rights, and we will not stop until we achieve voting rights: removing obstacles of participation and the voter suppression laws, doing away with their nullification of elections, removing big special interest money from suffocating our political system, so that everyone's voices are heard."

As her historic fourth term as Speaker of the House draws to a close, it is nearly impossible to express the full impact of her decades of leadership and the profound legacy she leaves behind.

It has been my privilege to know and collaborate with Speaker Pelosi since her earliest days in Congress, when I was a Louisiana State Senator, throughout my two terms as Mayor of New Orleans and the last two decades with the National Urban League. One of my most treasured mementos is a pen she gave to me that President Obama used to sign the Affordable Care Act.

Of all the legislative and policy initiatives on which she and I have worked together, it was the passage of the ACA that demonstrated her unmatched mastery of the legislative process and the power of her determination. When her party's loss in a Senate special election cost them a filibuster-proof majority, many—including President Obama's own chief of staff—publicly declared the ACA dead and advocated for a watered-down, piecemeal approach. Speaker Pelosi derided the proposal as "eensy weensy bill," telling President Obama, "I know there are some on your staff who want to take the namby-pamby approach. That's unacceptable."

The vote-wrangling that Speaker Pelosi employed to bring the bill to meet the pen I now treasure will be the subject of graduate seminars on public policy for generations to come.

But as large as her speakership may loom in the history books, she was no less bold or impressive as minority leader.

In 2018, she broke the record for longest House speech, spending eight hours and seven minutes reading the emotional letters of young DREAMers, undocumented immigrants brought to the United States as children who aspire to become U.S. citizens. Characteristically, she wore her four-inch heels the entire time. Minority Leader Kevin McCarthy bested her record by four minutes last year, "but if he wanted to outdo her, he should've done it in stilettos," Rep. Alexandra Ocasio-Cortez said.

Whether leading the majority or minority, she has long been a target of misogynistic attacks, false accusations and conspiracy theories, and threats of violence led by members of the opposing party. Tragically, this campaign of demonization culminated in a brutal attack on her husband, Paul Pelosi, by a right-wing conspiracy theorist intent on abducting her. Yet she herself has never resorted to personal attacks. She has risen above the rancor and insults leveled at her without responding in kind. She continues to exude grace and is the personification of the iron fist in a velvet glove.

When she was sworn in as the first woman Speaker of the House in 2007, she noted that women had waited more than 200 years to shatter the "marble ceiling" of Congress. As she said, "Women weren't just waiting, women were working. Never losing faith, we worked to redeem the promise of America, that all men and women are created equal."

Her commitment to that promise never has wavered throughout her illustrious career. She has been steadfast in her support for civil rights and civil liberties. I'm proud to call her my friend. On behalf of the National Urban League and our nationwide network of affiliates, I thank Speaker Pelosi for her years of dedicated service and her friendship to the League. —November 23, 2022

Civil Rights Leaders Urge Administration to Place New, Consolidated FBI Headquarters in Prince George's County

From Congressman Steny Hoyer's Office

(Nov. 28, 2022)—Wanted to make sure you saw this letter released last week by National Urban League President and CEO Marc H. Morial, Greater Washington Urban League President and CEO George H. Lambert, Jr., National Action Network Founder and President Rev. Al Sharpton, and Nia 2X, President of the National Action Network Greater Washington, D.C., Chapter, urging the Biden Administration and GSA to select Prince George's County as the home to the new, Consolidated FBI Headquarters.

"Prince George's County is home to the largest suburban majority Black population in the region and one of the largest in the nation," the leaders wrote. "Though there is a talented and educated workforce in the county, this community has historically been left out of federal office space allocations and other investments from the Federal Government. Such disparities in the county contribute to a median income that is 18% lower than the median income of the region as a whole and 48% lower than the median income of Fairfax County."

"Prince George's County has 48% of federal warehouse space and 20% of the region's federal workforce, yet only 4% of the region's federal office spaces are housed in the county," the leaders continued. "A federal investment in this county the size and significance of the new FBI headquarters would begin to address the low rate of federal office space and bring economic growth and development to this community that has been historically underserved."

The Honorable Joseph R. Biden, Jr.
President of the United States
The White House
1600 Pennsylvania Avenue Northwest
Washington, DC 20500

The Honorable Robin Carnahan
Administrator of General Services
United States General Services Administration
1800 F Street NW Washington, DC 20405

Dear Mr. President and Administrator Carnahan: On behalf of the National Urban League, National Action Network, the Greater Washington Urban League, and the National Action Network's Greater Washington, DC Chapter, organizations with a demonstrated history of advocating for policies that promote equitable access to adequate economic opportunity for African Americans and other historically underserved communities, we write to strongly encourage the Biden-Harris Administration (Administration) to select a Prince George's County site—Greenbelt, MD or Landover, MD—to house the new consolidated Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) headquarters. The selection of a Prince George's County site is consistent with the Fiscal Year 2022 Consolidated Appropriations Act and the Administration's commitment to equity and empowerment initiatives.

Prince George's County is home to the largest suburban majority Black population in the region and one of the largest in the nation. Though there is a talented and educated workforce in the county, this community has historically been left out of federal office space allocations and other investments from the Federal Government. Such disparities in the county contribute to a median income that is 18% lower than the median income of the region as a whole and 48% lower than the median income of Fairfax County.

In January 2021, the Biden Administration solidified its commitment to racial equity when it announced the "Executive Order on Advancing Racial Equity and Support for Underserved Communities Through the Federal Government" (Executive Order).¹ The language in the Executive Order acknowledges the "unbearable human costs" of the entrenched racial disparities in our laws and policies and affirmatively commits the Federal Government to a comprehensive approach in advancing equity for all. Selecting a Prince George's County site to house the consolidated FBI headquarters would help effectuate the Administration's written commitment to racial equity.

Section 6 of the Executive Order—titled, "Allocating Federal Resources to Advance Fairness and Opportunity"—is especially relevant here. Section 6 reads in part, "The Federal Government should . . . allocate resources to address the historic failure to invest sufficiently, justly, and equally in underserved communities."² Prince George's County has 48% of federal warehouse space and 20% of the region's federal workforce, yet only 4% of the region's federal office spaces are housed in the county. A federal investment in this county the size and significance of the new FBI headquarters would begin to address the low rate of federal office space and bring economic growth and development to this community that has been historically underserved. This selection therefore squarely aligns with the Federal Government's stated commitment in Section 6 of the Executive Order.

The Federal Government's commitment to racial equity is also highlighted in one of the five criteria for selecting the location of the new consolidated FBI headquarters. Part of Criteria #4, as outlined by the General Services Administration (GSA), is to advance "racial equity and support for underserved communities through the Federal Government."³ The Administration has therefore given two clear indications that holistic pursuit of an equity agenda is a priority for the Federal Government.

We implore the Administration to select Greenbelt, MD or Landover, MD as the home of the new consolidated FBI headquarters. Doing so would represent an important step toward addressing the historic failure to invest equitably in Prince George's County. It is similarly an important step toward making real the Administration's commitment to racial equity.

The National Urban League, Greater Washington Urban League, National Action Network, and National Action Network's Washington DC Chapter appreciate the opportunity to comment on this important issue.

Sincerely,

Marc H. Morial, President & CEO, National Urban League

5 Tips to Pull Off Holiday Hosting

FAMILY FEATURES

With stay-at-home holidays a thing of the past for many families, they're now busy preparing for full-blown celebrations. The return of traditional festivities brings seemingly never-ending to-do lists and pressure to be the perfect host.

From mastering a mouthwatering menu and donning your home with decadent decor to ensuring guests enjoy the evening to the fullest, hosting duties bring plenty of responsibilities. This year, though, you can avoid those anxious feelings with some preparation ahead of the big day.

To help pull off a sensational seasonal soiree, consider these tips from the entertaining experts at Sun-Maid to make the holidays brighter and more manageable so you can navigate the stresses of hosting.

Invite Others to Share Favorite Traditions

Especially with stay-at-home holidays in recent years, some friends and family members may have developed their own special traditions from new recipes and foods to seasonal games and activities. Inviting your guests to bring or share something that represents their favorite part of the holidays can help everyone feel welcome.

Take Time for Yourself

Remember to make time for yourself so you can enjoy the fruits of your labor right alongside guests. The busyness of this time of year can add stress but reflecting on the true meaning of the season and reveling in your favorite parts of the holidays can help you avoid feeling overwhelmed.

Add New Ingredients to Your Menu

While pairing this year's turkey or ham with the classics provides comfort and calls to mind holiday memories of the past, cooking with new ingredients and adding fresh recipes to the menu can put a fun spin on the season and maybe even create your own traditions to carry forward.

For example, baking with an option like Sun-Maid Raisins provides a whole fruit option with zero grams of added sugars per 1/4-cup serving. They're an easy, better-for-you substitution to reduce overall sugar intake without compromising flavor or texture when compared with dried cranberries, which contain 27 grams of added sugars per 1/4-cup serving. The natural sugars of raisins make them a versatile, useful addition to a wide variety of holiday-worthy dishes.

Hop On Hot Food Trends

One of this year's most popular trends in the kitchen is food boards, a fun and easy way to elevate flavor while incorporating favorites like cured meats, cold cuts, cheese slices and cubes, dips, nuts and more. Plus, you can keep your board balanced with nutritious items like vegetables and fruit, such as raisins, which provide sweet flavor without the added sugars.

A Time for Truce

Gathering for the holidays is about coming together with loved ones, family, friends and neighbors – and pulling it off means catering to everyone's needs and wants. It's a time for compromises and truces. To help add a little extra spark this year, try incorporating a theme to the party or coordinate fun activities and games that can be enjoyed by all. For example, holiday-themed charades, a seasonal "name that tune" game and gift exchanges all give guests ways to get in on the excitement.

Pediatrician-Approved Tips to Conquer Holiday Travel with Little Ones

FAMILY FEATURES

The holiday season is a time for joy and togetherness, but it can often bring stress for parents of young children with the amount of "newness" in each experience, particularly when it comes to seasonal travel.

To help make holiday travel with little ones more manageable – whether traveling by bus, train, car or plane – Dr. Whitney Casares, MD, MPH, pediatric medical consultant for Gerber, offers this guidance for families.

Travel Light

Especially if traveling by plane, pack as light as possible (or check most of your luggage) so you have less to maneuver through security gates and on the plane. However, for longer trips, packing small, developmentally appropriate toys and snacks can provide perfect entertainment for little ones.

Prepare for Ear Pressure

Babies often scream during takeoff and landing on flights because they can't easily equalize the pressure in their eustachian tubes, the connection between their ears and the back of the throat. When you're ascending and descending, give your baby something safe to suck on, like a pacifier, to reduce the buildup of pressure in the ears. Taking small sips of water, breastmilk or formula and yawning are also ways to help babies and toddlers experiencing ear pressure during flights.

Plan for Time Adjustments

For long trips that include time zone changes, expect children to take several days to grow accustomed to their new schedules. Plan an extra day or two for that time adjustment, if possible, when mapping out your trip and make time for stops to stretch, snack and take bathroom breaks.

Pack Convenient Snacks

Having easy-to-access snacks that don't make a large mess can make travel easier and less stressful. For example, Gerber Plant-Tastic Banana Berry & Veggie Smash with Oats Organic Pouch and Plant-Tastic Lil' Crunchies White Bean Hummus are nutritious snacks for toddlers that come in resealable containers that are easy to pack for on-the-go families.

Bring Sanitizing Products

Having your own sanitizing wipes on-hand makes it easier to freshen up often-touched surfaces in public spaces like seatback trays, chairs and tables. While safe on most hard surfaces, check the label before using the wipes then allow the area to dry completely before letting your child touch it. Warm, soapy water can also be used to clean toys and other personal products.

Maintain a Consistent Schedule

Keeping your child on his or her normal schedule during the holidays isn't always feasible and a few imperfections are to be expected during the busy season. However, if your baby's feeding or sleep schedule does get thrown off by holiday events, try to return to a consistent routine as soon as possible. Be patient with yourself and your little one as you both adjust.

Be Mindful of Anxiety

While attending holiday gatherings, your child may become overwhelmed when meeting new people, including family members. Babies start to develop separation anxiety and apprehension to strangers at about 6 months old as their brains start to understand the concept of object permanence (that something still exists when it is not present). Educating loved ones about this developmental stage can help you feel less anxious about big family gatherings with your little one. If your child is particularly sensitive, try introducing new people in smaller cohorts, as opposed to introducing him or her to the whole group at once.

Take Time for Yourself

While traveling with little ones can be a "bumpy road," it's important for parents to also try and enjoy the holidays as much as possible. Making some time for yourself – taking deep breaths, listening to a meditation on an option like the Calm app or playing a favorite song, for example – can help you recharge and relax ahead of a big event.
