Servers and Bartenders Rally and March in Opposition of Montgomery and Prince George's Counties Effort to Repeal Tip Credit

Server Survey Details Overwhelming Opposition to the Proposed Repeal

By PRESS OFFICER

Restaurant Association of Maryland

LARGO, Md. (Oct. 12, 2023)—Servers and bartenders from across Prince George's and Montgomery Counties rallied at Jasper's Restaurant in Largo, Maryland and marched to the Prince George's County Administration Building on Thursday, Oct. 12 to express their opposition to the proposed elimination of the tip credit in both counties.

"The servers and bartenders in Prince George's County and Montgomery County turned out today to oppose this proposed legislation because they know this is not in their best interest," said Restaurant Association of Maryland President and CEO Marshall Weston. "Servers will earn significantly less overall than they do under the current tipping system should the tip credit be eliminated and that is not good for the restaurant industry."

During the rally, Weston announced the results of a survey of servers and bartenders in the two counties, detailing an overwhelming majority of those surveyed do not support the proposed elimination of the tip credit.

Key findings include:

- An overwhelming majority—80%—say they are likely to quit their jobs and find work in a jurisdiction that allows tip credit if the tip credit were eliminated.
- A strong majority of those surveyed— 87 % of tipped employees—agree that the current tipping system works well for them and does not need to be changed.

Buttigieg Presents Tuition Grant to Prince George's, Baltimore County Community College Commercial Driver's License Programs

By TOMMY TUCKER Capital News Service

Pete Buttigieg presented grants to two Maryland community colleges Wednesday, Oct. 11 to help cover tuition in their commercial driver's license programs. Prince George's County Community College and Community College of Baltimore County received $173,640 and $197,410 respectively, to help with the cost of tuition for veterans, refugees and the underserved. Gov. Wes Moore and staff from both schools attended the event in a PGCC parking

"Before the infrastructure law passed, even if the school qualified for these grants, students would still have to cover a lot of the tuition. Here at Prince George's, that comes LARGO, Md. (Oct. 11, 2023)— roughly to about $4,000," said U.S. Transportation Secretary Buttigieg. "We're tearing down so that they can get funded to come to an excellent institution like this.'

The Commercial Motor Vehicle Operator Safety Training Grant from the U.S. Department of Transportation is part of an ongoing effort to expand job opportunities within the trucking industry. This assistance is available through the Bipartisan Infrastructure Law, Buttigieg said. The law, officially known as the Infrastructure Investment and Jobs Act of 2021, provides resources to fix decaying roads, bridges, waterways and rails, and boosts transit projects, broadband access and climate large vehicles, including school

Fort Washington Native Serves Aboard Navy Warship in Norfolk

By ASHLEY CRAIG Navy Office of Community Outreach

NORFOLK, Va. (Sept. 29, 2023)—Petty Officer 1st Class Jamica Ballard, a native of Fort Washington, Maryland, serves aboard a U.S. Navy warship operating out of Norfolk, Virginia.

Ballard graduated in 2008 from Friendly High School.

The skills and values needed to succeed in the Navy are similar to those found in Fort Wash-

"The main lesson I carry with me is from my mom," said Ballard. "She always told me to never take things personally when I'm doing a job. That lesson helps me adapt to various environments and work with people with different personalities because I may not always get along with everyone, but I can't take it to heart.'

Ballard joined the Navy 14 years ago. Today, Ballard serves as a mass communication specialist aboard USS Kearsarge. "I was working at Blockbuster when the recession started," said Ballard. "The economy was going through a hard time and Blockbuster got phased out so I lost my job. My older brother was interested in joining the Navy and I went with him when he was being recruited. I ended up going but he didn't." Kearsarge's crew is made up approximately 1,200 crewmembers and can accommodate up to 1,800 Marines. Amphibious assault ships transfer Marines, equipment and supplies, and can support helicopters or other aircraft. Kearsarge is the third ship in the Wasp class of multipurpose amphibious assault ships and is the fourth Navy vessel to bear the name of Mount Kearsarge in New Hampshire.

Remembering Orva Heissenbuttel and "About Antiques"

Orva Heissenbuttel, one of the founders of the Surratt Society and columnist of the Washington Star's "Antiques and Americana" and the Enquirer-Gazette's "About Antiques," died Oct. 31, 2018, at her home in Montross, Va. She was 91.

I am writing about her now because she was a fascinating woman who would have celebrated her 96th birthday this week, on October 27. She was also my teacher.

Orva was born near Cora, Perry Township, in Ohio, the eldest daughter of Zelma and Jackson Tandy Walker. She was valedictorian of the Class of 1945 at Rio Grande High School and attended Bliss Business College in Columbus. While working for the Civil Service in Dayton, she met Capt. William Heissenbuttel; they were married in 1947.

The Air Force shuttled the Heissenbuttels around the U.S. before assigning them to Andrews. After they moved to Joyce Drive in Camp Springs, Orva began to give classes and seminars on antiques. She formed the American Antique Arts Association.

She even learned to make her own blown glass at Virginia Commonwealth University.

In later years Orva and William joined daughter Iris on Virginia's Northern Neck. In winter they stayed with daughter Lili in Key Largo, Fla.

Her husband of 69 years, Major William George Heissenbuttel, predeceased her in 2014. She was survived by her daughters, two grandsons, and three sisters.

Orva was a lifelong member of the Methodist Church and a devoted parishioner of Bells United Methodist Church, in Camp Springs

I took Orva's class on refinishing antiques and learned how to restore a vintage trunk.

Town of Morningside

Trunk-or-Treat, Morningside's Halloween celebration, is on Saturday, Oct. 28. If you want to participate by decorating your car or if you'll have the trunk open with Halloween treats, call the Town at 301-736-2301 to reserve a spot on the parking lot. Also, there'll be a movie, games, food for sale and a Halloween costume contest for all ages. Please note, "for all ages," so you can compete, no matter how old you are.

When my kids were growing up here, there was no place better than Morningside! That's because the Town celebrated trick-or-treat on Oct. 30 and held the Costume

Judging on Oct. 31. The kids trick-or-treated both nights.

I ran the sale house. It was Jody's!

For several years I've been listing a neighborhood house sale in my column. I've always wondered if any of my readers once lived in the house I listed. Last week it happened.

"Oh Mary, It took my breath when I read that the home at 6713 Larches Court sold. It's where my siblings and I were raised. Hope the new owners make great memories in it." Signed, Jody Bowman Nyers.

Needless to say, I was delighted! So much so that I asked Jody to write about growing up in Morningside. Here's Jody's story:

"My family moved to Morningside in 1965 and I started in the 4th grade at Morningside Elementary then attended Foulois Junior High and graduated from Central High in 1974. Two of my Mom's sisters (Himes and Goldsborough) and her mom (Leigh) lived in Morningside which meant many cousins to play with and dinner at Nanny's on Sunday was very special! "I loved going to Teen Club and being a Campfire Girl. My best friends were Cheryl Johnston and Carol Cather as well as so many lifelong friendships that were formed. Vacation Bible school at Suitland Road Baptist Church was always a good time. Fireworks behind my aunt's house was the best spot! And being part of the Morningside Drum & Bugle Corps and Majorettes was a huge part of all our lives. "I'm sure every one of us reading your newsletter Mary has similar stories to share because it truly was a wonderful and safe place to grow up. "Thank you for letting me share just a snippet of my youth. I'd love to hear others' stories."

So would I.

Changing landscape

A rare million-year-old fossil has been found at Calvert Cliffs along the Chesapeake Bay. It was (according to the Washington Post) a "remarkably intact skull of a 15 million-year-old, now-extinct dolphinlike creature that once swam in a shallow sea that covered most of Maryland." The skull will be put on display at the Calvert Marine Museum.

This has been a "heavy mast year" for acorns. Such masts, apparently, come along every few years. However, I've never experienced anything like this year. The acorns have been cascading down from a tall, old white oak next to my driveway, sounding like they were breaking into the house in their fall, blanketing my lawn and sidewalk. Now I worry that they'll pose a problem with the lawnmower. Do they have to be raked up before mowing?

A home at 4406 Morgan Road, in Morningside, has sold for $349,000.

Prince George's Green Summit free and fun

Free and fun for the whole family! Electric vehicle demo, pet adoptions and resources, green exhibitors, giveaways, free reusable bag distribution (while they last), food trucks, music, face-painting, bubbles and more. This will be at the Green Summit on Sat., Oct. 21, 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at David C. Driskell Community Park, 3911 Hamilton St., in Hyattsville. Rain date, Sat., Nov. 4, same time and place.

Chris Webb, Systems Analyst

Christina "Chris" Florence Webb, 87, of Camp Springs, died October 2, with her family by her side. She was born in Washington to the late William and Florence Wilson.

She worked as a Computer Specialist/Systems Analyst for the Systems Development Directorate, retiring from Naval ComStation Washington (Navy yard). She worked for the Department of the Navy for 40 years, 1954 to 1994.

Her official obit states, "As a single parent, in an era that this was rare, Christina was able to instill faith and confidence in her children."

Chris was predeceased by her oldest son Shawn, who died just last May 30, and her twin brother William. Survivors include her children, Thomas, Kevin and Amy; their spouses; five grandchildren and two greatgrands. Her funeral Mass will be held Sunday, Nov. 12 at 1:30 p.m., St. Philip's Church, followed by a gathering of family and friends.

Navy from A1

Serving in the Navy means Ballard is part of a team that is taking on new importance in America's focus on rebuilding military readiness, strengthening alliances and reforming business practices in support of the National Defense Strategy.

"I think the Navy is important to national defense, especially for what we represent perception-wise," said Ballard. "We want to maintain the perception of being a power force. We're able to be ready at all times for the call to duty."

With 90% of global commerce traveling by sea and access to the internet relying on the security of undersea fiber optic cables, Navy officials continue to emphasize that the prosperity of the United States is directly linked to trained sailors and a strong Navy.

Ballard has many opportunities to achieve accomplishments during military service.

"I'm proud of being Sailor of the Year for 2022 and being meritoriously promoted to petty officer first class," said Ballard. "Being Sailor of the Year comes with the responsibility of being the face of the command and also a really nice parking spot. A lot of the sailors, especially junior ones, saw me working hard, and the fact that they see me being recognized, allows them to not lose hope. It shows them that people are watching, that they can be recognized and that everything they're doing is not for nothing."

As Ballard and other sailors continue to train and perform missions, they take pride in serving their country in the U.S. Navy.

"For me personally, serving in the Navy means consistency," said Ballard. "Despite the changes in the Navy and the culture, there's enough consistency to support me and my family financially."

Ballard is grateful to others for helping make a Navy career possible.

"I would like to thank my mom, Shari Davis, for her support," said Ballard. "I also want to thank my older brother, Vaurice Davis. Even though he didn't end up joining the Navy with me, he's still been a huge support."

Ballard appreciates the opportunities the Navy has provided and recommends others consider taking advantage of those opportunities as well. "If I had one thing to tell young people it would be to give the Navy a chance, whether it's one contract or more," added Ballard. "There are so many opportunities and career fields you can take up in the military."

Council Member Edward Burroughs Launches Free Security Camera Program For District 8 Residents

Program named in honor of Jayz Agnew, 13, who was killed in his yard last year

District 8 Council Member Edward Burroughs III is partnering with the nonprofit Joan's House, Inc. to provide free surveillance cameras to District 8 residents.

The program is in honor of Jayz Agnew, the 13-year-old boy shot and killed while raking leaves in his front yard last November. The case remains unsolved and there is no known surveillance footage.

"We're excited to introduce this groundbreaking initiative aimed at enhancing safety and security in our community," said District 8 Council Member Edward Burroughs Ill and Joan's House, Inc. in a joint statement. "The Jayz Agnew Security Camera Pilot Program will revolutionize the way we approach neighborhood security, fostering a more connected and accountable environment for us all."

The Council has also passed Jayz Law, a measure separate from this program, that establishes a security camera incentive program that will be available countywide when implemented.

Council Member Burroughs has heard from community members who want security cameras and he immediately took steps to meet that need. Joan's House will provide and install Blink 3rd generation cameras.

To be eligible, you must be a District 8 resident living in a single-family home without any security cameras. You must have WiFi, an email account, and a smartphone that can access the Google Play or Apple Apps store.

Jayz's mother, Juanita Agnew, praised the new program saying: "Justice can come in different forms. So the fact there is no arrests, the fact there is no suspects, but we have initiatives in his honor, to me is justice in a way."

In ELA, students exceeded pre-pandemic performance across all grade levels, with Black and Hispanic students outperforming the state and scoring significantly higher than their peers across all other Maryland school districts. See Graph 1.

English learners and those from economically disadvantaged families also outscored students with similar backgrounds across Maryland in ELA. See Graph 2

In mathematics, PGCPS students saw improvements from SY22 to SY23 across almost all grade levels, with Black students demonstrating math proficiency at a rate similar to their peers across the state. However, black students from economically disadvantaged families scored higher than their counterparts in the rest of Maryland.

"More than half of the 50 Maryland schools showing the greatest improvement in ELA are in Prince George's County—proof that our students are trending in the right direction," said Superintendent Millard House II. "Data also shows that nearly 25 percent of our students are just on the cusp of proficiency, which speaks to the effectiveness of post-Covid interventions and instruction."

MCAP results also brought good news for PGCPS programs that support students with special needs and English learners: students with disabilities saw increased proficiency in mathematics and ELA in some grades, and even outperformed their peers without disabilities on several assessments. Similarly, exited English learners outperformed non-English learners in ELA and several mathematics assessments.

Of Maryland's school districts, PGCPS has the greatest percentage of English learners with one in four students speaking a language other than English as primary. Additionally, non-white students comprise 97 percent of the district's enrolled students, of which a significant number qualify for Free and Reduced-Price Meals.

Krystal Oriadha Champions

A pair of maternal health resolutions, sponsored by District 7 Council Member Krystal Oriadha, was introduced by the Prince George's County Council on Tuesday, October 10, and will now go to committee.

The first resolution (CR-090-2023) would create a Black Maternal Health Fund of up to $1 million to ensure organizations that provide wraparound services to women in need have necessary resources.

"The Black Maternal Health Fund will support our nonprofits who are working to alleviate maternal health disparities, often with a limited budget and insufficient resources," said Council Member Oriadha. "This measure won't solve the problem overnight, but it is a step in the right direction."

The second resolution calls for a maternal health audit of government agencies in Prince George's County. It establishes a Policies and Healthcare Options Task Force to audit County policies and healthcare benefit options with a focus on maternal health. The five-member task force would be comprised of a County Council representative; Health Department Director or designee; Office of Human Resources Management (OHRM) Director or designee; and one representative from two separate organizations focusing on maternal health work.

"As an expecting mother, there are issues surrounding maternal health that have been brought to my attention. I realized with my county health insurance I could not give birth in the county because my insurance provider does not have a contract with any Prince George's County hospital. I think it's important that as a county, we do better, and I pledge to make sure we do just that," Oriadha said. "We cannot ignore the fact that black women die of maternal related complications at rates much higher than their white counterparts."

Black women have the highest maternal mortality rate in the U.S. and are three times as likely to die in childbirth as white women, according to a study by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

CR-090-2023 and CR-091-2023 have been referred to the Council's Government Operations and Fiscal Policy Committee (GOFP) for consideration.

University of Maryland School of Nursing Students Improving Health Equity Through Free Health Resources to Prince George's County Community

Nursing students, in partnership with the Prince George's County Memorial Library System, to provide health screenings, blood pressure screenings and health education to the community at no cost.

By ANDREA CASTILLO PGCMLS

LARGO, Md. (Oct. 11, 2023)-A newly created partnership between the Prince George's County Memorial Library System (PGCMLS) and the University of Maryland School of Nursing (UMSON) will provide much-needed health resources to the community, while providing a critical clinical experience for nursing students.

The initiative—Talk Health with the University of Maryland School of Nursing—places entry Bachelor of Science in Nursing (BSN) students from UMSON at the Universities at Shady Grove in the Greenbelt Branch

Library on Mondays this fall. "The Prince George's County Memorial Library System is able to provide access to health information and resources to the public with key services such as blood pressure screenings, medication education, and primary care referrals," said PGCMLS Central Area Director Quemar Rhoden, who worked closely with UMSON to help launch the partnership. "The University of Maryland School of Nursing is an amazing organization, and we are truly grateful for their entire team that makes such a meaningful impact in the lives, and health, of customers."

By partnering with UMSON for the Talk Health series, PGCMLS continues a long tradition of offering health resources to Prince George's County residents, Rhoden said.

"PGCMLS is committed to supporting the well-being of our community. Some examples from the past few years include our COVID-19 Vaccine Hunter Hotline, 'Get Active: Ride & Read' stationary bikes in library branches, and 'Caseworker in the Library' series with Maryland Department of Human Services," he added.

For nursing student Bukola Oladipuo, working directly with the community is extremely fulfilling, especially when it comes to educating them about the importance of managing their

"A lot of people—after checking them, we realize that they didn't take their blood pressure medication that morning," Oladipuo said. "Letting them know how important it is to be compliant with the medication regimen—it's something rewarding for me."

Each week, under the supervision of clinical faculty, the students will conduct free health screenings, referrals, health education and classes on a variety of topics, including stress reduction, healthy eating and nutrition, managing chronic illness, and low-impact exercises.

NOTE: Students cannot assist with first aid, wound care, emergency services, diagnosis of illness or vaccinations.

"Public libraries and public health are a natural combination," said Karin Russ, JD, MS '09, BSN '89 RN, assistant professor. "Libraries are one of the last free spaces and provide the public with access to information and technology. And now, they will provide the ability to talk with health professionals oneon-one."

Russ, who coordinates clinical experiences for the BSN Community and Public Health nursing course, has been teaching public health and environmental health classes at UMSON since 2009, said the School looks forward to being able to help improve health equity in Prince George's County.

"This new partnership is a cost-effective way to build healthier communities,"

The collaboration between UMSON and the library system expands work that began last year. In spring 2023, UMSON BSN students were placed in multiple branches of the Enoch Pratt Free Library throughout Baltimore in a partnership that was the first of its kind in Mary-

Rally from A1

- Many agree that customers tip better when service is better (84%), and 70% of those surveyed already earn more than minimum wage and that they have the ability to have schedule flexibility
- Many (37%) tipped employees say they are earning $20.00–$29.99 per hour, while others are earning $30.00–$39.99 per hour (28%), $15.00–$19.99 per hour (24%) or $40.00 per hour or more (11%).
- A majority—80% of those surveyed—believe that customers are unlikely to continue tipping on top of any mandatory service charge.
- A majority (86%) say they want the current system with a lower base wage and tips that provide the ability to earn more than the minimum wage, while 14 percent want a different system with a higher base wage, but a less certain outcome on tipped income for the server.

A statewide tip credit repeal bill considered in the Maryland General Assembly failed to pass earlier this year because of strong restaurant industry opposition and scores of servers who urged lawmakers to reject it because they make significantly more money under the current tipping system.

Like all workers, restaurant tipped employees must earn at least the full applicable minimum wage per hour in base wages plus tips. There is no subminimum wage for restaurant tipped employees. Under federal, state, and local minimum wage laws, employers are required to make up any deficiencies if a tipped employee does not earn enough in base wages plus tips to make at least the full minimum wage.

Tipped employees are among the highest earners in full-service restaurants, earning a median of $27 per hour including tips, according to National Restaurant Association research. Servers at some restaurants can earn $40 or more per hour including tips.

Restaurant server earnings would significantly decrease if the tip credit was eliminated because most restaurants would be forced to impose a service charge on customer checks to cover the substantially higher labor costs. Customers are unlikely to tip on top of service charges.

University of Maryland

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (Oct. 12, 2023)—Digital age-infused financial crimes against businesses are the focus of a single-day seminar on Friday, Nov. 3, 2023, from Justice for Fraud Victims (JFV) at the University of Maryland's Robert H. Smith School of Business in cooperation with the Prince George's County Police Department's Financial Crimes Unit.

Keynote speaker is Stephen Dougherty, a financial investigator and forensic analyst for the Secret Service's Global Investigative Operations Center. The doors open at 8:30 a.m. From 9–9:45 a.m. a session of introductions and discussion by the seminar's hosts will include a presentation by Prince George's County Police Department's Financial Crimes Unit on identity theft in apartment rental scams.

Subsequent presentations:

among others.

"We believe in veterans, and we believe in the importance of trucking, for the country, for our economic security, and for our future," said Buttigieg. "You in Maryland have a governor who understands the importance of infrastructure and of transportation in people's everyday lives."

Both Buttigieg and Moore are veterans—Buttigieg was a naval officer and Moore served in the Army—and both were Rhodes scholars. The two announced in January a project to rebuild the 150-year-old B&P Tunnel in Baltimore, renaming it the Frederick Douglass Tunnel.

James Brackins, 70, a recent graduate of the Commercial Driver's License program and an Army veteran, introduced Buttigieg to the crowd of under 100. Brackins joined the program as a part of his goal to build affordable housing in his hometown of Jonesville, Louisiana.

"Now, I'm one step closer to achieving that goal," said Brackins. "It gives me great joy to know that others will be supported in their dreams, just as I have been supported thanks to PGCC."

Moore and Buttigieg greeted staff and the CDL instructors and toured the commercial tractor trailers used in the program. PGCC partners with Mr. George's Driving School of Gaithersburg, which provides instructors and equipment for training.

At one point, Moore hopped in the passenger seat of a commercial tractor trailer to ride along with a demonstration of driving through the parking lot and backing up between cones.

Moore praised PGCC, mentioning his visit a few weeks prior with President Joe Biden to the campus.

"It says so much about this administration that just weeks after the president came to Prince George's County Community College, that Secretary Buttigieg is here again as well," said Moore.

Community colleges are an important area for Moore because he attended a two-year college, receiving an associate degree from Valley Forge Military College. In his speech, Gov. Wes Moore rides with Prince George's County Community College commercial driving school student Carlos Sanchez Wednesday, Oct. 11, 2023.

Moore said his junior college experience was the foundation of his career.

"Our support for community colleges is not just everlasting, it's personal," said Moore.

In 2023, PGCC's transportation, distribution and logistics departments trained more than 500 students and it has enrolled more than 300 more since July.

"Much like the Department of Transportation, we, too, are committed to the mission of providing safe, efficient, sustainable and equitable commerce in our community," said Sherrie Johnson, vice president of external affairs, communications, and advancement at PGCC.

Buttigieg has been in Maryland since his Impact Maryland forum Tuesday, sponsored by The Baltimore Banner, where he addressed electric vehicles and transit infrastructure. During that event, the secretary was forced off the stage by climate protesters critical of a planned oil export facility near Houston.

Hospice of the Chesapeake Golf Tournament Brings in a Quarter Million Dollars

By ELYZABETH MARCUSSEN Hospice of the Chesapeake

PASADENA, Md. (Oct. 10. 2023) — Facing a historic anniversary year, the 20th annual Hospice of the Chesapeake Golf Tournament scored the fundraising equivalent of an eagle. With a long list of sponsors and more than 250 golfers, the event broke another record, raising $250,000 for the not-for-profit that serves Anne Arundel, Calvert, Charles, and Prince George's counties.

No doubt the venue and joyful attitude accompanied by food, drinks and giveaways helped to make it another successful year. Held Sept. 28 at Queenstown Harbor Golf Course, the tournament offered hospitality that began with an omelet bar in the morning, shrimp and bourbon along with grilled lunch at the turn and a gourmet awards banquet to cap off the day.

The great success of this tournament was made possible by the generous support of its sponsors, including our Masters level sponsor, The Michael Stanley Foundation; U. S. Open sponsors All Green Management, Brown's Toyota of Glen Burnie, and First National Bank; Augusta sponsor Greenberg Gibbons; Heritage sponsors, Carpet and Wood Floor Liquidators, Crescent Cities Charities, Inc., Heinsohn Contracting Inc., Thomas Howell, and Twin Oaks Consulting; and Pebble Beach sponsors Charter Financial Group, DataLink Interactive, First Citizen's Bank, FLOHOM Inc., Green Point Wellness, Gunther Refuse Services, HM2 Buck for Hope Foundation, Shore United Bank, Sturbridge Development Company and Winegardner GMC Prince Frederick.

The event is planned by the Hospice of the Chesapeake Golf Committee, an incredible group of volunteers who each year create a memorable outing focused on supporting the programs and services this hometown hospice provides for those living with and affected by advanced illness. They already are planning for next year when the 21st annual Golf Tournament is held September 26, 2024, at Queenstown Harbor.

Caring for life throughout the journey with illness and loss is the mission of Hospice of the Chesapeake. Visit www.hospicechesapeake.org.
