Maryland Officials Okay More Purple Line Money, but not Gladly

By SAPNA BANSIL
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (March 13, 2024)—Gov. Wes Moore and the state's chief financial officers approved nearly half a billion dollars in extra funds for the Purple Line on Wednesday, even as they condemned the embattled project's mounting delays and escalating costs.

Nearly seven years after construction began, transit authorities returned to the Board of Public Works yet again this month, this time seeking an additional $425 million for the light-rail project. It was the fourth such request since 2016 to supplement the Purple Line's original $5.6 billion budget.

Following the three-member board's unanimous but reluctant approval, the total cost of the Purple Rail is now approaching $10 billion.

"Not anyone in our administration is happy that we find ourselves, once again, in a position to have to increase the cost of this project," Moore said.

"Competence is a basic ask of the people of this state," he added, "and we are still cleaning up this mess from years of mismanagement on this project."

The 16-mile east-west line, designed to run between New Carrollton and Bethesda, is being built through a public-private agreement with the Purple Line Transit Partners. The group is responsible for constructing, operating and maintaining the system until 2057.

The administration of Moore's predecessor, former Republican governor Larry Hogan, brought in private companies to work with the state on the project. The public-private partnership, known as a P3, was part of an effort to mitigate the cost burden on taxpayers. But the project has endured a number of issues, including significant construction delays and disputes with contractors.

A spokesperson for Hogan offered a different critique after Wednesday's meeting.

"The Purple Line doesn't need to be 'fixed,' it needs to be finished—and for the good of the region, that should be the sole focus of everyone involved in the project," said Mike Ricci, a spokesperson for Hogan, currently a candidate in the Republican primary for U.S. Senate.

"We recognize Maryland Democrats are in full panic mode about Governor Hogan's campaign, but turning a procurement meeting into a politi-

Senators Hear the Case for Cutting Americans' Work Week to 32 Hours

By TORRENCE BANKS
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON (March 14, 2024)—In 1955, Walter Reuther, head of what was then known as the United Automobile Workers (UAW), told a Senate hearing that coming technological advancements would make a four-day workweek possible.

That was the last Senate hearing on the subject for nearly 70 years. The Senate Health, Education, Labor and Pensions Committee finally ended the draught Thursday as lawmakers debated legislation, sponsored by Sen. Bernie Sanders, I-Vermont, that would reduce the standard workweek to 32 hours without cutting employees' pay.

"...Despite an explosion in technology and a massive increase in worker productivity, nothing has changed,"

WASHINGTON—Sen. Bernie Sanders, I-Vermont, gestures during a Thursday hearing on the 32-hour workweek by the Senate Health, Education, Labor and Pensions Committee. Sanders chairs the panel and Sen. Bill Cassidy of Louisiana (left) is the ranking Republican.

Sanders said. "Think about that, huge transitions we have seen in the economy. But in terms of the workweek, nothing has changed."

Sanders said that the goal of his bill was to ensure that working-class citizens benefit from the revolutionary changes in the workplace over the past seven decades.

Introducing his measure Wednesday, Sanders said that U.S. workers had become over 400% more productive since the 1940s. Even so, people now are working longer hours at lower wages, he said.

UAW President Shawn Fain said that automation now allows a single worker to do what used to require 12 workers. Companies' obsession with ensuring productivity every second of the day has come at the cost of workers, he said.

"When people reach the end of their lives they never say I wish I'd make more money," Fain told senators. "What they wish for is they wish they had more time. There was a time when this phenomenon was supposed to lead to workers getting our time back, getting some of their lives back."

Forty percent of Americans work at least 50 hours a week, and 18% of today's workforce works more than 60 hours a week, according to research cited in Sanders' statement.

A 2019 study published by the International Journal of Environmental Research and Public Health found that working more than 60 hours a week led to a decline in workers' mental health compared to those who worked standard hours.

"It causes an increase in cortisol levels, which lead to heart disease, cancers, strokes," Fain said about working extended hours during the week. "But given all those facts as someone is lucky enough to get to retire, typically when they weren't willing to work themselves to death their entire life, they face knee replace-

Free PGCC tuition for District 8 residents

To date, $2 million dollars has been allocated to the Local Impact Grant/Scholarship Funding at Prince George's Community College just for District 8 residents. And help is needed to spread the word to District 8 neighbors! (By the way, Skyline, my home, is in District 8.)

When MGM Casino was built, a portion of the gaming and tax revenue was dedicated to the surrounding community through the MGM Local Impact Grant Fund. District 8 Council Member Edward Burroughs III has announced a new program that uses MGM Casino revenue to provide free tuition at Prince George's County Community College.

The program is available to those living in the six-mile radius surrounding the casino in District 8 and some border areas of District 7 (Skyline). While the program was initially funded at $1 million, the Prince George's County Council allocated another $1 million to serve more residents and keep the program going beyond the upcoming semester.

For information, go online to the Free PGCC announcement.

Neighbors & other good people

President Joe Biden visited the house across from my Saginaw, Michigan, home last Thursday. My brother, Tom Mudd, who still lives in our Victorian home (circa 1848), called—very excited—to report that Secret Service had stopped by to advise him to stay indoors.

William Joseph Lyons, 80, who worked at Census for 38 years, as Branch Section Chief, died February 6. Survivors include his wife of 57 years, Ruth, daughter Christy, son John, and grandchildren. From his obit: "He is in a better place where golf rounds are free, the coffee is always ready, and your favorite crime shows run all day."

VFD Post 9619 is hosting an All Black Attire Grown-Folks Party on Saturday, April 27, from 8 p.m. to midnight. The only thing—you have to wear black and be 35 or older. Purchase tickets in advance at the VFW or by calling 301-735-5290. The Post is at 6527 Suitland Road in Morningside.

Thank you to all who wished me a Happy Birthday on my 95th, March 12th. I enjoyed celebrating it with my family. I enjoyed, too, dinner out with them at Mama Stella's.

Changing landscape

Trees were toppled and tourist attractions closed as that windstorm moved through here last week. It was the worst wind I ever remember.

WSSC has sent notice that they will be working in my area "about March 4, 2024, and be complete by March 2026." The project is to construct or repair water sewer mains, weather permitting. Also, "restoration of sidewalks, roadways and landscaping will take place within 90 days of construction completion." So far, I've seen no sign of the work, but am glad to be notified.

Dollar Tree and Family Dollar plan to close nearly 1,000 stores. I don't know if this involves our local stores.

A home at 4400 Ridgecrest Drive, in Skyline, recently sold for $415,000.

Places to go & things to do

The National Park Service is seeking volunteers to help clean up the shoreline of Oxon Cove Park, 10 a.m. to noon every fourth Saturday of every month. This sounds like a great idea for kids that need volunteer hours—a chance to work in a beautiful area (near the Children's Farm). Call 301-839-1176 for more information.

Go to National Harbor on Sunday, March 24, for a wide array of free cultural activities including an artisanal Japanese marketplace, cultural performances, culinary delights, a sake and beer garden, and more!

Also on March 24: The 9th annual Oxon Run Pinknic & Kite Fly. There'll be kite programming, free food, entertainment and a Ward 8 vendor market. Hours: noon to 3 p.m.

In my March 7 column, I gave the history of how Morningside came to be. I received several emails about the name, Morningside, and where it came from.

According to Charles J. Kiker's history,

The Town of Morningside, Maryland, 50th Anniversary, "The area had already been named Morningside by an unknown person who had said to have rationalized its name by the location on the East Side of the Capitol and the morning side of Washington, D.C."

December 1941: World War II began for the U.S. House-building ended.

July 1942: The first Morningside Directory was published. At the time, Morningside had 109 families.

1944: The military highway, Suitland Parkway, was completed.

1945: The Morningside Volunteer Fire Department and its Ladies' Auxiliary were organized. An attempt was made to incorporate the town.

March 31, 1945: Camp Springs Army Air Field as it was officially known, changed its name to Andrews Air Force Base in honor of General Frank M. Andrews, who died in a B-24 crash in Iceland in 1943.

1946: The War ended. Post-war house construction began. A gas station opened in Morningside. Skyline subdivision began.

1947: Town Hall was built at the corner of Woodland Road & Forest Drive. (It's now a home.)

1949: The town was incorporated, and the first election held—Mayor June T. Stocklinski, Councilmen Thomas S. Austin, Duncan Fleming, C.W. Mueller and R. C. Stevenson.

June 1949: The new officials took office and immediately created a Volunteer Police Department: Charles Kiker (later became the first Chief of Police), Gerald Glaubitz (became longest-serving mayor in Maryland), and Donald Michelson.

April 9, 1951: A pilotless WWII vintage B-25 crashed into a house on Lombardy Road, killing two baby girls and their uncle visiting from out-of-town. Fighting the fire was made more difficult by the lack of a main water system. Support began almost immediately to have Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission (WSSC) build a water and sewer system to replace the town's three wells.

cal war room reeks of desperation,” Ricci said in an email to Capital News Service.

During Wednesday’s discussion about whether to increase funding, board member Brooke Lierman, the state’s comptroller, took aim at public-private partnerships, saying that the Purple Line demonstrates “the folly of relying on P3 models for complex, long-term transportation projects.”

“Everyone in the state of Maryland is bearing the burden of the errors made by the past administration today,” Lierman said. “I don’t enjoy voting yes on this, but we have to be committed to ensuring that we meet our obligations to the riders in the state of Maryland.”

At Wednesday’s meeting, Holly Arnold, administrator of the Maryland Transit Administration, said the Purple Line is more than 65% complete, with construction underway at 13 of 21 planned stations and 17,000 linear feet of rail installed. The expected completion of the much-delayed project has been pushed back to winter 2027.

Arnold added that the $425 million would be paid out to Purple Line Transit Partners over several years and is contingent upon achieving certain milestones, an accountability measure aimed at encouraging progress with the project.

Still, board member Dereck Davis, the state’s treasurer, lamented the project’s problems. “I just want to raise hell,” he said. He added that he’d been considering casting a “no” vote on additional funds but ultimately decided the project is too far along to abandon.

“We’re literally approaching 100% [cost increase,]” Davis said, “with no real guarantee that that’s the end.”

The ladies of Iota Phi Lambda Sorority, Incorporated (Zeta Mu Chapter/Upper Marlboro, MD), the first Black business and professional women’s sorority, embraces the phrase “Working and NOT Shirking.” And that is exactly what the sisters of the Zeta Mu Chapter did by partnering with the chief executive officer and executive team of the Sickle Cell Coalition of Maryland to host a Martin Luther King, Jr. Day of Service project for sickle cell disease (SCD) warriors.

The ladies of Iota Phi Lambda Sorority worked around the clock to assemble 100 infusion kits and 150 care packages for sickle cell patients (ages 4 through early 20’s) at the Capital Regional Medical Center and Children’s National Medical Center in Prince George’s County, MD. The infusion kits included “distraction items” such as stress balls, brain teasers, pens and word searches. The care packages included a plethora of hygienic items such as shampoo, deodorant, toothbrushes and hair care products. Since sickle cell warriors must endure being hospitalized for weeks at a time due to pain crises, blood transfusions, and more, we hope our donations will uplift their

CareFirst Community Health Plan of Maryland Partners with Fabric Health to Provide Care Coordination in Laundromats

Innovative Community Partnership Expands Where and When CareFirst Members Receive Care Coordination Services

By PRESS OFFICER
CareFirst

BALTIMORE (March 11, 2024)—Today, CareFirst BlueCross BlueShield (CareFirst), one of the largest not-for-profit healthcare organizations in the country, announced a partnership with Fabric Health to embed English and Spanish-speaking care coordinators in community laundromats. Fabric Health will be at laundromats to connect CareFirst Community Health Plan Maryland (CHPMD) members and non-members to high-quality benefits and services according to their needs and preferences.

"The COVID-19 pandemic significantly impacted people's ability to seek preventive care," said Mike Rapach, President & CEO of CareFirst CHPMD. "By meeting people where they are, in the time they have, Fabric Health is able to support the health and wellbeing of the Medicaid population."

The partnership will start at laundromats in Prince George's County and Montgomery County, prioritizing zip codes with the largest health disparities. "By meeting families at laundromats where they already are, we turn a weekly chore into meaningful time to get, understand and use CareFirst CHPMD benefits," said Allister Chang, Co-Founder of Fabric Health.

"Through this pilot, CareFirst members will gain new access points to learn about benefits and services available to them, including help scheduling yearly check-ups with primary care providers and enrolling in maternal health programs," said Sheila Yahyazadeh, Chief External Operations Officer, CareFirst CHPMD.

In addition to providing care coordination services, Fabric Health will be at laundromats to help families submit their redetermination for Medicaid coverage before the next due date. The partnership launches during the "unwinding" of the continuous enrollment condition authorized by the Families First Coronavirus Response Act (FFCRA), during which over 234,000 Marylanders have been disenrolled from their coverage, mostly for procedural reasons. More information about the end of continuous coverage and Medicaid renewals can be found at <https://dhs.maryland.gov/medicaid-unwinding/>.

In partnering laundromats, Fabric Health will also conduct social drivers of health (SDOH) screeners and connect families to relevant SDOH-related resources, including help applying for public benefits, such as the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP) and the Low-Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP).

In its 86th year of service, CareFirst, an independent licensee of the Blue Cross and Blue Shield Association, is a not-for-profit healthcare company which, through its affiliates and subsidiaries, offers a comprehensive portfolio of health insurance products and administrative services to 3.5 million individuals and employers in Maryland, the

Social Security Matters

Ask Rusty:

How Do Survivor Benefits Work for a Married Couple?

By RUSSELL GLOOR, National Social Security Advisor at the AMAC Foundation, the non-profit arm of the Association of Mature American Citizens

Dear Rusty: How does Social Security handle the death of one spouse? Say, for example, the husband receives $2,000 per month in Social Security and his wife receives $1,000 per month. How is the death of either spouse handled? Signed: Concerned spouse

Dear Concerned: Benefits to a deceased beneficiary stop as soon as Social Security (SS) is notified of the death (notification usually done by the funeral director who handles arrangements). Benefits are not paid for the month of death, only for the preceding month when the beneficiary was alive for the entire month.

A surviving spouse is entitled to the higher of two benefits—their own personally earned SS retirement benefit, or an amount based on the deceased spouse's benefit at death. In the example you cite, and assuming the surviving spouse has reached full retirement age (FRA): if the husband dies first the wife will receive the husband's $2,000 monthly benefit instead of her previous $1,000 amount. But if the wife died first, the husband would continue receiving only his $2,000 monthly amount because that is more than his deceased wife was receiving. Note in either case, the surviving spouse would be entitled to a one-time lump sum "death benefit" of $255.

The surviving spouse would need to contact Social Security to claim the "death benefit" and—unless the surviving spouse was previously receiving only a spousal benefit—also to claim the higher monthly amount, if eligible. If the surviving spouse was previously receiving only a spousal benefit from the deceased (and not entitled to SS retirement benefits on their own), then Social Security would automatically award their higher survivor amount when notified of the death.

If a surviving spouse has reached full retirement age (somewhere between 66 and 67 depending on year of birth) and is eligible for a survivor benefit, the amount of the survivor benefit will be 100% of the deceased spouse's benefit. But if the survivor claims the benefit before reaching FRA, the amount of the survivor benefit will be reduced (by 4.75% for each full year earlier). The survivor's benefit reaches maximum at the survivor's full retirement age.

If a surviving spouse has not yet reached their FRA, and if they are entitled to (not necessarily collecting) their own Social Security retirement benefit, the surviving spouse has the option to delay claiming the survivor benefit until it reaches maximum at their full retirement age. And if the survivor's personal SS retirement benefit will ever be more than their maximum survivor benefit, the surviving spouse also has the option to claim only the smaller survivor benefit first and allow their personal SS retirement benefit to grow (to maximum at age 70 if desired).

With Social Security there is hardly ever a simple answer to a question but, in the example you use, if both are over their SS full retirement age:

- If the husband dies first, the wife will get 100% of the amount ($2000) the husband was receiving, instead of the small amount ($1000) she was previously receiving.
- If the wife dies first, the husband's monthly benefit will remain at $2000, and he will get no increase in his monthly amount.
- In either case, the surviving spouse will be entitled to a one-time lump sum death benefit of $255.

Department of Parks and Recreation in Prince George's County's College Park Aviation Museum Wins Grant From Maryland Center for History and Culture

By PRESS OFFICER
Prince George's County Department of Parks and Recreation

RIVERDALE, Md. (March 15, 2024)—The Department of Parks and Recreation in Prince George's County, part of M-NCPPC, is proud to announce its College Park Aviation Museum (CPAM) has been awarded a $20k Maryland Center for History and Culture (MCHC) Miller History Fund grant. The award will aid the museum in continuing intensive cataloging and digitizing of its collections.

The Miller History Fund is made possible by an annually recurring allocation from the State's Preservation of Cultural Arts Fund, proposed by late Senate President Emeritus Thomas V. "Mike" Miller Jr., for which the fund was renamed in 2021. Over five years, the grant program has invested a total of $1,000,000 to 53 historical organizations throughout Maryland.

"As we approach the 250th anniversary of our nation's independence in 2026, now is the time to invest in our historical collections and empower organizations to tell all the diverse stories that make Maryland unique. This commemoration is an opportunity to explore our state and country's expansive and complex history in forward-thinking and inclusive ways. The breadth and depth of Maryland's story is so apparent in this round of grantees," said Katie Caljean, MCHC President and CEO.

Upon receipt of the award, The Field of Firsts Foundation, Inc., the 501(c)3 non-profit arm of the museum, will hire a part-time cataloguer to assist the CPAM curator. This stewardship project has already unveiled a forgotten story of the first female Airmail Office employee who was married to the first Airmail pilot, in 1918. With a collection spanning the entire history of powered flight, there are many similar impactful stories to tell. Duties of the new hire will include cataloging, digitization, database record creation, rehousing objects, updating locations, and completing condition reports.

"By performing this inventory, the collection will be more accessible to staff to craft relevant exhibits catered to our diverse, local community", states CPAM Curator of Collections Luke Perez. "We will also be able to begin putting our collections online for public use and research. We are grateful to MCHC for this significant award."

confidence that the skilled workforce needed for these high-tech environment protecting jobs will be found in our County," said David Iannucci, President & CEO, Prince George's County Economic Development.

Blink Charging's expansion and relocation project in Prince George's County was made possible in part through the assistance provided by PGCEDC and funding assistance, which will be provided by the County's Economic Development Incentive Fund (EDIF). The EDI Fund aided Blink Charging in expanding its current manufacturing facility and relocating its headquarters from Florida to Maryland.

"We are grateful for Blink's confidence in the Prince George's County business climate, in our quality workforce, and in their ability to capitalize on the many advantages that their Bowie site brings," said Prince George's County Executive Angela Alsobrooks. "Blink's decision to locate its corporate headquarters and expanded production of environmentally-friendly electric vehicle charging stations here sends a strong message about their confidence in the economic growth throughout the county."

The production facility is expected to produce more than 50,000 charging units annually to meet the rising demand for electric vehicles. With the relocation and planned manufacturing expansion, Blink hopes to increase environmentally friendly employment opportunities in the county by creating more than 60 new positions within the first year.

"Blink Charging is proud and excited to be establishing our global headquarters and production facility in Maryland, marking a pivotal moment in our journey toward a greener future," said Blink President and Chief Executive Officer Brendan

Jones. "We are committed to implementing innovative technology and manufacturing processes to enhance efficiency, capability, and output speed while maintaining quality standards and are excited to be doing it here. We thank the state of Maryland for welcoming us."

The Maryland expansion will also support Blink's growth by adding another production line, streamlining operations, and meeting the increasing demand for electric vehicles. This manufacturing facility will continue to adhere to U.S. "Buy American" requirements, helping the Company increase domestic manufacturing and production of its products.

Blink's primary products and services include the Blink EV charging network, which uses proprietary, cloud-based software to operate, maintain, and track the EV charging stations connected to the network and the associated charging data. The final assembly of Series 6, Series 7, and Series 8
